ERNEST HEMINGWAY and FOR WHOM THE BELL TOLLS

For Whom the Bell Tolls was inspired by Hemingway's experiences as a foreign correspondent in Paris and Spain during the Spanish Civil War. In 1937, Hemingway travelled to Spain to write about the war for the North American Newspaper Alliance. When For Whom the Bell Tolls was published, it was considered Hemingway's finest work, and many critics still consider it to be his masterpiece. Specifically, the literary world praised Hemingway's spare style and powerful symbolism.

People still consider this book to be not only Hemingway's best, but also as one of the best war novels of all time.

It is the Spanish Civil War. In the forests of the Spanish Sierra, a guerrilla band prepares to blow up a vital bridge. Robert Jordan, a young American volunteer, has joined the small group of rebels on this mission. It is night in the rebel camp, and Pablo – one of the Spanish guerrillas – has insulted the American.

“Pablo is drunk” Primitivo said. “Pay him no heed, Inglés*.”

“I do not think he is so drunk,” Robert Jordan said.

Maria was standing behind him and Robert Jordan saw Pablo watching her over his shoulder. The small eyes, like a boar’s, were watching her out of the round, stubble-covered head and Robert Jordan thought: I have known many killers in this war and some before and they were all different; there is no common trait nor feature; nor any such thing as the criminal type; but Pablo is certainly not handsome.

“I don’t believe you can drink,” he said to Pablo. “Nor that you’re drunk.”

“I am drunk,” Pablo said with dignity. “To drink is nothing. It is to be drunk that is important. Estoy muy borracho.”

It was so quiet in the cave, suddenly, that he could hear the hissing noise the wood made burning on the hearth where Pilar cooked. He heard the sheepskin crackle as he rested his weight on his feet. He thought he could almost hear the snow falling outside. He could not, but he could hear the silence where it fell.

I’d like to kill him and have it over with, Robert Jordan was thinking. I don’t know what he is going to do, but it is nothing good. Day after tomorrow is the bridge and this man is bad and he constitutes a danger to the success of the whole enterprise. Come on. Let us get it over with.

Pablo grinned at him and put one finger up and wiped it across his throat. He shook his head that turned only a little each way on his thick short neck.

“Nay, Ingles,” he said. “Do not provoke me.”

* Englishman
 I am very drunk.
VOCABULARY IN CONTEXT

1. What kind of animal is a boar?
2. Pablo has a stubble-covered head. Does he have a lot of hair or only a little?
3. What is a hearth?
4. Look at the last sentence about Pablo. Can you mime the actions he does?
